PREFACE.

MOTHER GOOSE'S MELODY.

FEW books in the English language have had so great and persifftent circulation as the collection of Nursery Rhymes known as Mother Goose’s Melody. In presenting a reprint of the earliest known edition, some bibliographical notes may be in place.

According to my present knowledge, I feel sure that the original name is merely a translation from the French; that the collection was first made for and by John Newbery, of London, about A.D. 1760; and that the great popularity of the book is due to the Boston editions of Munroe & Francis,
A.D. 1824-1860.

First, as to the name. Writing at the great disadvantage of locality, on this side of the Atlantic, in regard to English books, I can only say that I have found no early mention of Mother Goose as an English personage.
She does not appear to be a character known before the seventeenth century; and with due humility, I venture to suggest that such personifications of animals seem to be foreign to English modes.

*     *     *

I desire to dismiss, entirely, the idea that Mother Goose was a name which originated in Boston, Mass. In 1870, the late William A. Wheeler edited for Hurd & Houghton a beautiful edition of these melodies, and then claimed to identify Mother Goose with Elizabeth Goose, widow of one Isaac Vertoof or Goofe, and mother-in-law of Thomas Fleet, a well-known Boston printer, who came here in 1712, and died in 1758. He mar-rried in 1715, and is said to have printed, in 1719, the first collection of Mother Goose’s Melodies.

It is true that Fleet’s wife was of the Vertoof family, and that the name was often contracted to Goofe. The rest of the story depends entirely upon the unsupported statement made by the late John Fleet Eliot (a descendant of the printer), that in 1850 the late Edward A. Crowninshield, of Boston, said that he had seen a broadside of Fleet’s edition in the library of the American Antiquarian Society. Repeated searches at Worcester have failed to bring to light this supposed copy, and no record of it appears on any catalogue there. No other copy has ever been discovered elsewhere, and it seems reasonable to suppose that Mr. Eliot misunderstood the remarks made to him.

Until such an example shall be found, it is useless to repeat this story, and I shall waste no more time upon it; referring the inquirer to the New England Historical and Genealogical Register for 1873, pp. 144 and 311, and the Proceedings of the American Antiquarian Society, October, 1888, pp. 406–410. If there had been an edition printed in Boston in 1719, we can safely say that Benjamin Franklin would have had a copy. Yet in the recent reprints of his Prefaces, Proverbs and Poems, as contained in the Poor Richard Almanacs (see Knickerbocker Nuggets, New York, 1890), we find nothing that suggests a single one of these Melodies or any of the characters therein. It seems to be simply impossible, on reading Franklin’s annotations in these Almanacs, to believe that he had ever read Mother Goose and yet refrained from quoting or imitating them. It is, moreover, a very doubtful point, whether in 1719 a Boston printer would have been allowed to publish such trivial rhymes. Boston children at that date were fed on Gospel food, and it seems extremely improbable that an edition could have been sold.

* * *

But, on the other hand, the equivalent of Mother Goose is certainly of considerable antiquity in the French language. Its great popularity dates back to 1697, when Charles Perrault published the Nursery Tales entitled “Histoires ou Contes du Tems Passé, avec des Moralités.” On the frontpiece is an old woman spinning and telling tales to a man, a girl, a little boy and a cat. On a placard is written

“CONTES
DE MA
LOYE.”

There seems to be no doubt that "Contes de ma mère l'Oye," or Tales of Mother Goose," was a popular synonym for fairy stories.

Lang (p. xxiv) says, "The term occurs in Loret's La Muse Historique (lettre v, 11 Juin, 1650),

'Mais le cher motif de leur joye,
Comme un conte de la Mère Oye,
Se trouvant fabuleux et faux,
Ils deviendront tous bien pênaux.'"

Deulin (p. 10) speaking of that period quotes a remark that "the tales of Miletus are so puérile that they are sufficiently honored by comparison with our tales of 'Peau d'Ane' or 'Mère l'Oye.'"

"Peau d'Ane" was then the typical story (with which infants were hushed to sleep), and such were indifferently styled by either name.

Other examples can be found, and some writers connect the legend of Mother Goose with Queen Goose-foot (Reine Pédaque), said to be the mother of Charlemagne. At all events it is as clear that she belongs to French folk-lore, as that she is not to be found in English tradition.

Very strangely I am unable to state when Perrault's book was first translated into English. In the London Athenaeum, for 1887, I note an inquiry for the English edition of 1719, but no copy was reported. Lang says (Perrault's Tales, p. xxxiv), "An English version, translated by Mr. Samber, printed for J. Pote, was advertised, Mr. Auffin Dobson tells me, in the Monthly Chronicle, March 1729." In 1745 the Tales were printed at the Hague, with an English translation. (Ibid.)

Samber's edition, of 1729, seems to be verified as probably the first, by the following fact: I have a copy of a book entitled "Tales of Peased Times, by Mother Goose, With Morals, written in French by M. Perrault, and Englished by R. S., Gent. To which is added a new one, viz.: The Difcreet Princefs. The Seventh Edition, Corrected, and Adorned with fine Cuts. New York: Printed for J. Rivington, Bookfeller and Stationer, No. 56 Pearl-street, 1795. 12 mo. pp. 227."

It contains the English and French versions on opposite pages, but the "fine cuts" are not to be seen. The translatror, R. S., is undoubtedly Robert Samber, who is recorded in Allibone as translating a work from the French in 1719.

We may also presume that the reprint is from the seventh or sixth English
Preface.

dition, as I know of no earlier American issues. Pp. 151–227 are covered by "The Discreet Princess," whereof the French title-page says, "Imprimé l'an MDCCXCV," and the English "Printed in the year MDCCCLXIV." The French is dedicated to the Comteffe de Murat; the English, to the right honorable, the Lady Mary Montagu, daughter of John, Duke of Montagu. As this peer died in 1749, I suspect an error in the date of publication."

Until, however, more is known of the bibliography of this volume, I think we must accept the following facts as to the name: That Mother Goose was a French character, originally, and that her Tales were first published in 1696 and 1697, by Perrault; that in 1729 their fame reached England, and they were translated by Robert Sambler; when, for the first time, she was introduced to English readers.

So much for Mother Goose's prose "Tales," which comprised Little Red-Riding-Hood, The Fairy (the sisters who drop diamonds and toads, respectively, from their mouths), Blue-Beard, The Sleeping Beauty, Puss in Boots, Cinderella, Riquet with the Tuft, and Little Thumb; eight stories in all.

We have now to consider her "Melody." Here we are brought at once to John Newbery, the famous publisher, of St. Paul's Churchyard, London, whose Life, under the title of "A Bookfeller of the Last Century," has been charmingly told by Charles Welch (London, Griffith, Farran, Okeden & Welsh, 1885). Newbery was the first English publisher to prepare little story-books for children, and his success is amply shown in the notices of his contemporaries and successors. In 1765 he published The History of Little Goody Two-Shoes (reprinted in fac-simile by Charles Welch, in 1882), a story very generally ascribed to Oliver Goldsmith. At all events Goldsmith was a confluent writer for Newbery from 1762 to 1767, when the latter died; and some of this literary work was undoubtedly for the children's books.

* Lang says, p. xxvi, "by some unexplained accident a story of Madamoiselle L'Heritier's 'L'Adroite Princesse,' slipped into editions of Perrault's Contes, in 1721, if not earlier, and holds its place, even now. "The author was Mlle. L'Heritier de Villauodon, a relation of Perrault." She printed her volume in 1666. Charles Deulin (Les Contes de Ma Mère L'Oye, avant Perrault, Paris, 1878), says, p. 38, that Finette, ou l'Adroite Princesse, was long attributed to Perrault, though now restored to the right owner; that it was dedicated to the Comtesse de Murat, and (p. 21) that it appeared in the same year as Perrault's "La Belle au Bois Dormant," which latter was printed first, in 1696, in Meuten's Recueil, vol. v, printed at The Hague.

It is a matter of doubt whether the real collector of these Tales was not Charles Perrault's son, and that the father merely revised them and added the poetry.
In Mr. Welsh's careful list of Newbery's publications, we find mention of "Mother Goose's Tales." He says: "The seventh edition was printed May 16th, 1777, and between that date and March, 1779, Carnan & Newbery took 1710 out of the 3,000 copies printed by Collins, of Salisbury. It consisted of four-and-a-half sheets, long primer. Three thousand copies cost £ 18 13. 6. The eighth issued September 4, 1780."

It is impossible at present to learn when Newbery first issued the Tales, or whether the seven editions were those printed by him or were numbered from the first English issue. It is evident, however, that we have brought together the title, "Mother Goose," and the publisher, Newbery.

* * *

December 28, 1780, Thomas Carnan entered for copyright, "Mother Goose’s Melody, or, Sonnets for the Cradle, etc.," giving the full title as printed in the lift in our American reprint. Carnan was the stepson of John Newbery, and succeeded to the business, in partnership with Francis Newbery, nephew of John. Francis died in 1780, but the firm continued some twenty years. Mr. Welsh kindly informs me that he thinks it probable that 1780, the date of the copyright, was not necessarily that of the first issue of the book, but rather that the copyright was taken out in connection with the winding-up of the copartnership, on Francis Newbery's death.

So far as we now know, no publisher, except Newbery, was using the title of "Mother Goose," from 1760 to 1780; the prose Tales had evidently been a success; and, to quote Mr. Welsh's opinion, as that of a most competent judge, "it is quite in accordance with Newbery's practice to have utilized it for his Melodies for the Nursery."

If, as seems most probable, the first edition of "Mother Goose's Melody" was issued prior to John Newbery's death, in 1767, there is an interesting question as to who prepared the collection for the press. The rhymes are avowedly the favorites of the nursery, but the preface and the foot-notes are an evident burlesque upon more pretentious works. The first and most natural conclusion is that we may trace therein the hand of Goldsmith, an opinion held by Mr. Welsh. The probability, or even possibility, of this idea, would give an added interest to this collection.

Forster, in his Life of Goldsmith, gives proof that Goldsmith was very fond of children and was familiar with nursery rhymes and games. Thus he writes (Vol. II, p. 71), that Mrs. Hawkins says: "I little thought what I should have to boast, when Goldsmith taught me to play Jack and Jill, by two bits of paper on his fingers."
But the most curious bit of evidence is the following from Vol. II, p. 122: January 29, 1768, Goldsmith's play of the "Good-natured Man" was produced. He went to dine with his friends after it. "Nay, to imprefs his friends still more forcibly with an idea of his magnanimity, he even fung his favorite song, which he never contented to sing but on special occasions, about An old Woman tossed in a Blanket seventeen times as high as the Moon, and was altogether very noisy and loud."

Our readers will find this identical "favorite song" in the preface to Newbery's "Mother Goose's Melody," p. 7, dragged in without any excuse, but evidently because it was familiar to the writer. This coincidence is certainly of some force.

Newbery and Carnan did not succeed in keeping a monopoly of these Rhymes. In the American Antiquarian Society's Proceedings for 1888, I found a statement that in the Bodleian Library at Oxford, there were two copies of Mother Goose, printed about A. D. 1700. I am informed by Mr. Allnutt that this is entirely wrong. One copy is on paper which has the water mark of 1803, and the other has the imprint "London, Printed and Sold by John Marshall, No. 4, Aldermay Church-Yard, Bow-Lane, and No. 17 Queen Street, Cheapside. Price Three-Pence, Bound and Gilt."

This John Marshall, he adds, was a contemporary and rival of Carnan, and published children's books during the latter half of the 18th century and beginning of the present. "The contents are identical with yours, but some of the pieces toward the end are somewhat differently arranged. The cuts are very similar with the addition of a frontispiece representing a family group at lessons. There are 92 pages, followed by a list of children's books sold by John Marshall."

Not improbably it was some such piracy as this which made Carnan copyright his book in December, 1780, as already noted.

It may be mentioned here, however, that with the dissolution of the Newbery firm, and with the change in the taste for children's books, at the beginning of the present century, the English chain of evidence is broken, happily to be restored in this country, as will be shown. Mother Goose's Melodies are again to be found in English nurseries, but in some instances, at least, they are reprinted from American exemplars.

In 1842 the late James O. Halliwell edited for the Percy Society, "The Nursery Rhymes of England, Collected principally from Oral Tradition." In his preface, he writes, "these traditional nonsense-scrapes have come down to us in such numbers, that in the short space of three years the editor of the present volume had collected considerably more than a thousand. A selection is here presented to the reader. . . . . I may here also take the opportunity of stating, that it was originally my intention to have introduced, also, a collection of merriments, upon which many of these rhymes are founded, but the project was overruled by a gentleman who gave it as his opinion, that the Society would, by their publication, be involved in an awkward question of copyright. I was not previously aware that 'Goody-Two-Shoes,' and romances of this kind were regarded so jealously by the trade.'

He adds: ‘I am in possession of a curious and clever satirical pamphlet, entitled, ‘Infant Institutes,’ 8vo, London, 1797, to which I am indebted for some interesting scraps.’

Leaving Halliwell for the moment, with the remark that he does not mention Joseph Ritson’s ‘Gammer Gurton’s Garland,’ of 1810, I will take up the ‘Infant Institutes.’

In Notes and Queries for June, 1875 (5th S. iii:441), the late learned musician, Prof. Edward F. Rimbault, described an octavo pamphlet of 69 pages, entitled, ‘Infant Institutes, part the first, or, a Nurturcal Effay on the Poetry, Lyric and Allegorical, of the Earliest Ages, &c. London: printed for and sold by F. & C. Rivingtons, St. Paul’s Churchyard, 1797.’ It is ascribed to Rev. Baptift Noel Turner, M.A., rector of Denton, co. Linc, and of Wing, co. Rutland. Dr. Rimbault says: ‘The effay shows considerable learning, and was evidently intended to ridicule the Shakefperian commentators. It is now chiefly interesting, as giving us the earliest printed versions of some of our well-known nursery ditties. These rhymes were first collected by Ritson, in his Gammer Gurton’s Garland, printed for R. Triphook, in 1810, and have since been reproduced by Halliwell and a host of imitators. None of these collectors, as far as I am aware, has referred to Mr. Turner’s Effay.’ He then cites various Nursery Rhymes, and points out the variations in Ritson’s copies.

In the Gentleman’s Magazine for 1826, part ii, pp. 467-9, is an obituary of Rev. B. N. Turner, prepared in part from his own notes. It mentions various of his writings and states that ‘in 1791 he published a political satire called ‘Infant Institutes,’ ‘fraught,’ he observes, ‘with matter so eccentric and laughable as might chance to arrest the attention and raise the spirit of the public.’’ This disposes of any doubts as to the authorship of this collection of nursery rhymes.

It is a strange fact, however, that Ritson’s ‘Garland’ consists of four parts; and his brief preface reads as follows: "Parts I and II were first collected and printed by a literary gentleman, deceased, who supposed he had preferred each piece according to its original edition; an opinion not easily refuted, if worth supporting. Parts III and IV are now first added."

As I have been unable to see a copy of the "Infant Institutes," I cannot say whether it is identical with Parts I and II of Ritson. If it be, the inference is that Ritson was misinformed as to the author, as Mr. Turner was a prominent clergyman and was alive when Ritson wrote, dying May 18th, 1826, aged 86. If it be not, we have still to find a copy of the book on this subject "first collected and printed by a literary gentleman deceased," before 1810; and also to explain why Ritson knew nothing of the Infant Institutes of 1797.* Very possibly the fact will be proved that prior to 1797, some "literary gentleman" had published the book which Ritson used, and that it served as the model for Turner to travesty as "a political satire."

At all events, here is one volume, if not two, treating on Nursery Rhymes, printed between Newbery's "Mother Goose's Melody," of 1780, and Ritson's "Gammor Gurton's Garland," of 1810. Whoever first printed Parts I and II of Ritson's "Garland," certainly absorbed therein almost the whole of Newbery's book; of course from a printed copy. This fact is indisputable, because Newbery's "Mother Goose" contains fifty-two Nursery Rhymes, and of these, thirty-seven are in Ritson, most of them in identical words, and several in the same consecutive order.

Ritson's collection is the following:

"GAMMER GURTON'S GARLAND: or, the Nursery Parnassus. A choice collection of pretty songs and verses, for the amusement of all little good children who can neither read nor run. London: printed for R. Triphook, 37 St. James-street, by Harding & Wright, St. John's square, 1810." 12mo. pp. 46. It is divided into four parts, and contains many rhymes not in Newbery's book, but which have since been incorporated into "Mother Goose's Melody," as used for the last half century.

In 1842, Halliwell printed his collection, pp. 192, for the Percy Society. Although he does not mention Ritson's book, it is evident that he poffessed and used it, as nearly all of Ritson is contained in his book. Halliwell, being a great collector and annotator of Shakspieran literature, enriched his work with some valuable notes. His book, being much larger than its predecessors, has been the storehouse from which later editions of "Mother Goose" have been increased in size, often to the injury of their fitness. It is undoubtedly fair to abate somewhat Halliwell's claim that his rhymes were "collected principally from oral tradition," since he utilized three printed predecessors. It is very unfortunate, also, that he did not acknowledge the sources from which he copied, and devote a few pages to the bibliography of the subject.

* Dr. Rimbaud must have read Ritson very carelessly, as he cites two rhymes which, he says, are in the "Institutes," and not in Ritson. Yet both are in Ritson's Part III.

In Notes and Queries for 20th January, 1877 (5th S., vii, 54), I note that the preface to a fifth edition of Halliwell is dated December, 1853; and that there was a sixth edition of 333 pages, printed for John Russel Smith, of London. In 1877 the copyright was owned by Frederick Warne & Co., and the book "has been incorporated with Mrs. Valentine's Nursery Rhymes, Tales and Jingles."

* * *

We must now resume the history of Newbery's original "Mother Goose's Melody." The English editions have practically disappeared; at least Mr. Welsh writes that he has never been able to see an example of Newbery's print. But, fortunately, Isaiah Thomas, of Worcester, Mass., soon after the Revolution, took up the business of reprinting story books for children, and copied many of Newbery's favorite issues. A number of these are cited in the advertisement annexed to this "Melody." The most noted, perhaps, of all these Newbery books, was the History of Little Goody Two-Shoes. A reprint of this was issued by Mr. Welsh (London, 1882), a facsimile of the third edition of 1766. The best authorities attribute this little story to Goldsmith. In the Boston Public Library is a beautiful copy of Thomas's reprint, dated Worcester, 1787, which is a page-for-page reproduction, but probably from Newbery's first edition. The cuts are evidently done over, and imitate very well the originals; but towards the end of the book they vary in details from Mr. Welsh's example. There is no necessity, therefore, to presume that Thomas imported the cuts which had been used by Newbery. He did, indeed, slightly alter the publisher's personal notes, which Newbery was fond of inserting, substituting Worcester for London, etc.

In 1787 Thomas printed the following:

Annexed is the following very full list of other publications, including Mother Goose's Melody:

The Brother's Gift.  The Travels of Robinson Crusoe.
The Father's Gift.  The Beauty and the Monster.
The Fairing.  Be Merry and Wife.
The Sugar-Plumb.  The Natural History of Four-footed Beasts. By Tommy Trip.
The History of Little Goody Two Shoes.  The Holy Bible abridged.
Tom Thumb's Exhibition.  The History of Little King Pippin.
Tom Thumb's Play-Book.
The Little Puzzling Cap.
The Big Puzzling Cap.

I am informed by E. M. Barton, Esq., that in the American Antiquarian Society's Library there are copies of the "History of the Holy Jesus," "Nurse Truelove's New Year's Gift," and the "Entertaining Stories," all issued by Thomas in 1786, and all containing the advertisement of "Mother Goose's Melody." We seem, therefore, justified in placing the first issue of this latter at about 1785.

By the kindness of Miss Caroline M. Hewins, of the Public Library, Hartford, Conn., I have a full copy of one of Thomas's most characteristic reprints, which I place here on account of the full and interesting list of his publications. The book is entitled, "The Picture Exhibition, containing the Original Drawings of eighteen Disciples. To which are added, Moral and Historical Explanations. Published under the Inspection of Mr. Peter Paul Rubens, Professor of Polite Arts. Printed at Worcester, Massachusetts, by Isaiah Thomas, and sold, Wholesale and Retail, at his Bookstore. M DCC LXXXVIII."

It is impossible to say how long these Melodies were issued by Thomas; we only strike sure ground in the editions printed at Boston, for Munroe & Francis.

Edmund Munroe and David Francis, printers and bookellers, began business in 1801. In 1822 and 1823 they kept at 4 Cornhill, which was the southerly corner of the present Washington and Water streets. From 1825 to 1840, their store is called 128 Washington street; after 1841 they were in Devonshire street, corner of Spring Lane.

The name of Cornhill was changed to Washington street in 1824, and although they remained in the same store, the designation was altered. They issued an edition of Mother Goose, which I am about to describe, and though undated, it describes them as at 128 Washington street. The very perfect copy now owned by Joseph W. Robbins of Boston, has inscribed in it by his infant hand, "in the year 1827." We are thus assured that the issue was not earlier than 1824 nor later than 1827. So, again, on p. 115, we find the early song of “See-law facradown, which is the way to Boston town,” amended by the addition of these two lines:

“Boston town’s changed into a city,
But I’ve no room to change my ditty.”

As we know, Boston was chartered in 1822.

The seventy cuts are there, and are very creditable to the artists. Bowen’s name is signed to one, and his initials to several more. N. D., i. e. Nathaniel Dearborn, is on several, and one is signed, apparently, “Chiket’s, sc.” Evidently, Munroe & Francis intended to do their best.

The last page is signed “Jemima Goose,” which is interesting, as evidence that no one then associated the book with Elizabeth Vertigoose, the mother-in-law of John Fleet.

The book is about four and a half inches tall and three and a half inches wide; the type three and nine-sixteenths inches tall, two and seven-eighths inches wide.

It seems certain that the compiler of this edition had access to Newbery’s original, or, more probably, to Thomas’s reprint. On p. 44, the footnote is reprinted from one of these, almost verbatim: and no two independent writers would have so agreed. Again, on p. 80, Newbery’s title is copied, “A logical song, or, the conjurer’s reason for not getting money.” Moreover, this song seems to be peculiar to Newbery, not being in Gammer Gurton’s Garland. So, again, Munroe & Francis’s book has the well-known quatrains, “Jog on, jog on, the foot path way!” which is in Newbery, in the second or Shakespearean portion. It is not in Ritson nor Halliwell. It is to be found in the “Winter’s Tale,” act iv, scene iii. It is curious to note that the second line in Shakespeare reads,

“And merrily hent the stile, a.”

This verb “hent,” being obsolete in the last century, is replaced here by “mend;” but later it is translated as “jump,” which seems to be the meaning.

In fact an exact comparison shows that out of fifty-one titles in Newbery forty-eight are in the Boston edition. The three omitted are—

p. 23. There was an old woman.
p. 57. A long tailed pig.
p. 72. Piping hot.

All of which would be deservedly omitted now.
Preface.

It is much more difficult to decide whence Munroe & Francis obtained the additions which so increased their book. A portion is evidently modern, as for example Sir Walter Scott's "Pibroch of Donnell Dhu," which appeared in 1816. But many of those melodies which are not in Newbery's book, and are in this, are to be found in Ritson; they are, beyond question, of considerable antiquity.

The outside cover of this book reads, on the front,

BOSTON:

128 Washington Street.

Then comes the true title, as shown in fac-simile:

Then follow 118 pages, and I give a fac-simile of the last page. The outside cover, rear, represents an old woman sitting in a chair, talking to a little boy and girl; under this cut, 128 Washington Street:

118 MOTHER GOOSE'S MELODIES

John O'Gudgeon was a wild man,
He whipt his children now and then,
When he whipt them he made them dance
Out of Ireland into France.

Little Jack Nory
Told me a story.
How he try'd cock-horse to ride,
Sword and scabbard by his side,
Saddle, leaden spurs, and switches,
His pocket tight with cents all bright,
Marbles, tops, counters, props,
Now he's put in jacket and breeches.

One-ery, you-ery, e-ker-y, haven,
Hollow-bone, hollow-bone, ten or eleven,
Spin. spun. must be done,
Hollow-bone, hollow bone, twenty-one.

JEMIMA GOOSE

As this edition, as will be shown, is substantially the same as that copyrighted in 1833, and is the parent of all later illuses, I subjoin a table of contents. The pages cited in the left-hand margin are those of the edition of 1833. The items marked with a star are those found in Newbery's and Thomas's edition. Those marked C. have a wood-cut; in many cases the illustration takes the greater part of the page.

A few of the more interesting and peculiar rhymes are quoted in full. It should be added, that in this edition of Munroe & Francis, quite a number of verbal changes were made from Thomas's text; but it is needless to specify them:

     Jemima Goose.

In 1833 Munroe & Francis issued a new edition, for which they secured copyright. As will be seen by the table of contents just given, nearly all the rhymes of the first issue were retained in this, but the order was entirely altered. The additions are very few and trifling, excepting the following three:

"'Twas once upon a time, when Jenny Wren was young."
"As I was going to Derby, upon a market day."
"When good King Arthur ruled the land."
The title is as follows, the covers bearing a cut of a woman with a goose's head, etc.:

My young friends, when you have read the Verses in this Book, I recommend that you purchase my new volume of

CHIMES, RHYMES & JINGLES,

WHICH CONTAINS THE REMAINDER OF

MOTHER GOOSE'S SONGS:

BESIDES SOME NEW STORIES, SUCH AS FOLLOW:—

'THE KID THAT WOULDN'T GO,'

'HITTERY TITTERY, WHO WENT UP CHIMNEY.'

'THE DEATH OF LITTLE JENNY WREN, AND WHAT THE DOCTORS SAID ABOUT HER.'

'THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT.'

&c. &c. &c.

Illustrated with new and beautiful Pictures.

Although I have not seen this book, I presume that it was printed, and may yet be found.

In 1860 a new copyright was obtained by James Miller, 647 Broadway, New York, successor to C. I. Francis & Co., but the changes are not very great from the Boston edition.

I believe that this particular edition is no longer in print, and the rival issues of McLoughlin Bros., of New York, and others, seem to hold the market.
Preface.

A friend in Boston, possesses a copy, given him in 1843, of a different collection. It is entitled, "Mother Goose's Quarto, or, Nursery Melodies, embellished with two hundred engravings. New York: Published by Edward Dunigan, 151 Fulton Street." No date, 94 pages, not numbered.

Among curiosities I would class an edition copyrighted in 1848, by George S. Appleton, of Philadelphia, styled "Mother Goose in Hieroglyphics;" and one issued by George Routledge & Sons, New York, illustrated by Kate Greenway, "as originally engraved and printed by Edmund Evans." What this last phrase means I do not know.

English publishers, also, now send forth enormous editions, and this little book seems to promise to reach wherever babies are taught the English language.

* * *

As to the merits of Newbery's collection, little need be said. Most of the rhymes thus brought together are still in vogue; two or three are coarse or trivial, and are unworthy of continuance. In Ritson I find many added which are now favorites, and Halliwell has a few. It has been abundantly pointed out, especially by Halliwell, that some of these rhymes were in use in Shakespeare's time and even earlier.

"The Queen of Hearts, she made some tarts," four long stanzas, is quoted in Notes and Queries, 3d S., viii, 133, from the European Magazine, 1782, vol. i, p. 252. Again in Notes and Queries, 5th S., v, 366, Dr. Rimbault writes:

"In a song entitled 'The London Medley,' printed in The Aviary, 1744, the following are quoted:

'Colly, my cow.'
'Tom Farthing.'
'Old Obadiah sings Ave Maria.'
'Sing, lullaby, baby, on the tree top.'
'An old woman and her cat fat by the fire.'
'There was an old woman fold puddings and pies.'"

In "The Fashionable Lady, or, Harlequin's Opera," 1730, mention is made of "London bridge is broken down;" and in "The Grub Street Opera," 1731, the finale is directed to be sung to the tune of "Little Jack Horner."
In Notes and Queries, 4th S., vii, 386, it is stated that in Grafton’s Chronicle, dated 1570, is the following:

```
    Thirty days hath November,
      April, June and September,
    February hath twenty-eight alone
    And all the rest have thirty-one.
```

In Winder’s Almanac, for 1636, printed at Cambridge, is this version:

```
    April, June and September
    Thirty days have, as November;
    Each month else doth never vary
    From thirty-one, save February,
    Which twenty-eight doth still confine
    Save on leap-year, then twenty-nine.

This rhyme, although not to be found in Mother Goose, is so universally taught to children, that I hope its introduction here is excusable.

As to what should constitute a standard edition of Mother Goose, I venture to make a closing suggestion. Corruptions of the text have crept into many of the late editions, and modern imitations have been foisted in too often. It is to be hoped that hereafter these objectionable features will disappear, and that future generations of babies will be carefully footed only by such verses as have been duly approved by their predecessors, and handed down, not simply by oral transmission, but by the safeguard of an immaculate text.

As a contribution to this end, I would suggest that the standard text should consist of Newbery’s book (omitting the rhymes on pp. 11–14, 15, 16, 62 and 68), and such additions from Ritson and Halliwell as bear internal evidence of antiquity, and are true “Nursery Rhymes.” Many of those which are wanting in Newbery’s first collection, have since been added, and have become so endeared to later generations, that their omission would be unjustifiable. But for the nursery use, a wise discrimination should be shown, and many rhymes rejected which are old, indeed, but unsuitable.

That such a text may be prepared, and that this attempt to trace the literary history of a most remarkable volume, may be of service therefore, is the sincere wish of the present editor.

Boston, Sept. 6th, 1890.

W. H. W.
MUCH might be said in favour of this collection, but as we have no room for critical disquisitions we shall only observe to our readers, that the custom of singing these songs and lullabies to children is of great antiquity: It is even as old as the time of the ancient Druids. Charactacus, King of the Britons, was rocked in his cradle in the Isle of Mona, now called Anglesea, and tuned to sleep by some of these soporiferous sonnets. As the best things however, may be made an ill use of, so this kind of compositions has been employed in a satirical manner of which we have a remarkable instance so far back as the reign of King Henry the Fifth. When that great monarch turned his arms against France, he composed the preceding march to lead his troops to battle, well knowing that music had often the power of inspiring courage, especially in the minds of good men. Of this his enemies took advantage, and, as our happy nation, even at that time, was never without a faction, some of the malcontents adopted the following words to the king's own march, in order to ridicule his majesty, and to show the folly and impossibility of his undertaking.

There was an old woman toss'd in a blanket,
Seventeen times as high as the moon;
But where she was going no mortal could tell,
For under her arm she carried a broom.
Old woman, old woman, old woman, said I,
Whither, whither, whither so high?
To sweep the cobwebs from the sky,
And I'll be with you by and by.

Here

Here the king is represented as an old woman, engaged in a pursuit the most absurd and extravagant imaginable; but when he had routed the whole French army at the battle of Agincourt, taking their king and the flower of their nobility prisoners, and with ten thousand men only made himself master of their kingdom; the very men who had ridiculed him before, began to think nothing was too arduous for him to surmount, they therefore cancelled the former sonnet, which they were now ashamed of, and substituted this in its stead, which you will please to observe goes to the same tune.

So vast is the power of Harry the Great,
He'll pluck a hair from the pale fated moon;
Or a lion familiarly take by the tooth,
And lead him about as you lead a baboon.

All
rowed from this practice among the old British nurces; they have, indeed, been always the first preceptors of the youth of this kingdom, and from them the rudiments of taste and learning are naturally derived. Let none therefore speak irreverently of this ancient maternity, as they may be considered as the great grandmothers of science and knowledge.

We cannot conclude without observing, the great probability there is that the custom of making Nonsense Verses in our schools was bor-

12 Mother GOOSE's Melody.

II.

Then replied the little Maid,
Little Sir, you've little said
To induce a little Maid for to wed,
Wed, wed, wed;
You must say a little more,
And produce a little more,
E'er I make a little Pretty in your Bed, Bed, Bed.

III.

Then the little Man reply'd,
If you'll be my little Bride,
I'll raise my Love Notes a little Higher, higher, higher;
Tho' my offers are not meet,
Yet my little Heart is great,
With the little God of Love all on Fire, Fire, Fire.

IV.

Then the little Maid reply'd,
Should I be your little Bride,
Mother GOOSE's Melody.

Pray what must we have for to eat, eat, eat?
Will the Flame that you're so rich in Light a Fire in the Kitchen,
Or the little God of Love turn the Spit, Spit, Spit?
V.
Then the little man he sigh'd,
And, some say, a little cry'd,
For his little Heart was big with Sorrow, Sorrow, Sorrow;
As I am your little Slave,
If the little that I have
Be too little, little, we will borrow, borrow, borrow.

He who borrows is another Man's Slave, and pawns his Honour, his Liberty, and sometimes his Name for the payment. Learn to live on a little, and be independent.

VI. Then

Mother GOOSE's Melody.

VI.
Then the little Man so gent,
Made the little Maid relent,
And for her little Heart a think-king, king, king;
Tho' his Offers were but small,
She took his little All,
She could have but the Cat and her Skin, Skin, Skin.

A DIRGE.

LITTLE Betty Winchle she had a Pig,
It was a little Pig not very big;
When he was alive he liv'd in Clover,
But now he's dead, and that's all
Johnny Winchle, he [over;
Sate down and cry'd,
Betty Winchle she Laid down and dy'd;
So there was an End of one, two, and three,

Johnny

Johnny Winchle He,
Betty Winchle She,
And Piggy Wiggie.

A Dirge is a Song made for the Dead; but whether this was made for Betty Winchle or her Pig, is uncertain; no Notice being taken of it by Camden, or any of the famous Antiquarians.

Wall's System of Sense.
A melancholy SONG.

TRIP upon Trenchers,
And dance upon Dishes,
My mother sent me for some Bawn,
some Bawn:
She bid me tread lightly,
And come again quickly,
For fear the young Men should do me some Harm.
Yet didn’t you see,
Yet didn’t you see,
For me some
What naughty tricks they put up
They

Set by the Fire and spin;
Take a cup and drink it up,
Then call your Neighbours in,
A common Cave this, to call in our Neighbours to rejoice when all the good Liquor is Amphion’s SONG of EURYDICE.

I WON’T be my Father’s Jack,
I won’t be my Father’s Gill,
I will be the Fiddler’s Wife,
And have Musick when I will.

Tother little Tune.

THERE was an old Man,
And he had a Calf,
And that's Half;
He took him out of the Stall,
And put him on the Wall,
And that's all.

Maxim. Those who are given to tell all they know generally tell more than they know.

THERE

THERE was an old Woman
Liv'd under a Hill,
She put a mouse in a Bag,
And sent it to Mill:
The Miller did swear
By the point of his Knife,
He never took Toll
Of a Mouse in his Life.

The only Instance of a Miller refusing Toll and for which the Cat has just Cause of Complaint against him: Locke upon Littering.

THERE

THERE was an old Woman
Liv'd under a Hill.
And if she isn't gone
She lives there still.

This is a self-evident Proposition, which is the very Essence of Truth. She lived under the Hill, and if she is not gone for lives there still. Nobody will presume to contradict this.

PLATO's PLATO's SONG.

DING dong Bell,
The Cat is in the Well,
Who put her in?
Little Johnny Green,
What a naughty Boy was that,
To drown Poor Puffy Cat,
Who never did any Harm,
And kill'd the Mice in his Father's Barn.

Maxim. He that injures one threatens an Hundred.

LITTLE Tom Tucker
Sings for his Supper;
What shall he eat?
White Bread and Butter:
How will he cut it,
Without e're a Knife?
How will he be married,
Without e'er a Wife?

To be married without a wife is a terrible Thing, and to be married with a bad Wife is something worse; however, a good Wife that sings well is the best musical Instrument in the World.

HIGH diddle, diddle,
The Cat and the Fiddle,
The Cow jump'd over the Moon;

It must be a little Dog that laugh'd, for a great Dog would be ashamed to laugh at such Nonsense.

Cock a doodle doo,
My Dame has lost her Shoe;
My Master's lost his Fiddle Stick,
And knows not what to do.

The Cock crows us up early in the Morning, that we may work for our Bread, and not he that lives upon Trust shall pay double.

THERE

And gave her a Groat;
The Groat it was crackt,

Jack was a Boy of excellent Taste, as should appear by his pulling out a Plumb; it is therefore supposed that his Father apprenticed him to a Miner Pye maker, that he might improve his Taste from Year to Year; no one standing in so much Need of good Taste as a Pastry Cook.

O stay you here, your true Love’s coming,
That can sing both high and low,
